Cyclists can be so inconsiderate

Star Letter

I CAN sympathise with David Higgins, who was nearly knocked over by the inconsiderate cyclist at the junction of Charlton Way and Vanburgh Park. It is inexcusable that the cyclist made no effort to back off to allow the pedestrian to proceed, whatever the situation it must be remembered that this is still a footpath. This letter only highlights how selfish many cyclists can be. I have nearly been knocked down several times crossing the road on a pedestrian crossing, when a cyclist "undertakes" the stationary vehicles and carries on or, worse still, completely ignores me on the crossing. The moral of this story is not that signs need improving, more that attitudes need to change. Cyclists have been given space on pavements to isolate them from cars but now the problem has shifted to cause danger to pedestrians! I am afraid that until cyclists act in a responsible way and until they are compelled to have some kind of registration things will not improve.

John Roberts,
Plumstead

Staff the tops too

WHAT you did not mention in your two-page article on the Nathan Way recycling facility, (Feb 19), is the unfailing courtesy and helpfulness of the staff there. Whenever we visit we always come away awarding them top marks and thinking what a credit to Greenwich Council the entire team there is.

Derek Hyde,
Blackheath

New computer equipment before activities

UNFORTUNATELY, I went away soon after seeing this issue, (Jan 29), so have been unable to comment before. I was slightly annoyed to see two pages (10&11) advertising activities at all libraries. Rather than spending money on new activities would it not be better to invest in new computer equipment, particularly in Eltham, to avoid so many problems for resident users? I have been promised an upgrade there for at least six months and the problems are getting worse - e.g. no email access on most popular sites for over a week! I realise that the library is now run by Greenwich Leisure Limited but am sure the council funds somewhere along the line. I have been sorely tempted to withhold a portion of my council tax as I am not getting the service for which I am paying but realise that is not the answer!

David Crafter, Plumstead

●THANKS for the feedback, and apologies that you had trouble accessing your emails. The advert in GT was to help promote library activities to local residents. A programme of IT renewal has been planned for all libraries across the borough and work is due to start in April.

My fave is the 89

A REAL godsend during all this cold weather has been the buses, and I don't think they get the credit for it. My own favourite is the 89, which always seems to be regular and on time - and so warm!

Christopher Knott,
Blackheath

Pavements can be precarious

I AM writing in reply to J.K. of Plumstead about pavements, (Feb 19). Years ago, near to retirement, I tripped and fell because of an uneven pavestone. I had an horrendous fall, spinning and spinning towards a wall before falling to the ground and rolling over and over. Two ladies said they wondered when I was going to stop rolling. End result a broken big toe. Because of this I tear through the tops of my shoes, I cannot balance and now wear orthopaedic shoes.

RESIDENTS on Woolwich's Armstrong Estate can now get fit and healthy together – without having to pay a penny.

The open space between their four blocks of flats off Vincent Road has been fitted with a £16,000 outdoor gym, with enough kit for up to 11 people to have a workout all at the same time.

It was installed by environment regeneration charity Groundwork London, after the tenants' and residents' association, won a grant from Transform, a London 2012 Changing Places programme, with support from the royal borough.

Association chairman Mansoor Beg, who has lived on the estate for four years, said: "We did a survey, and people said they wanted a gym. People are now using it during the day and in the evenings. It's great, and we are very happy with it."

Chair of the local housing panel, Gary Brown, said: "I think it's great as well. It's good quality equipment, and people are using it properly."

Resident Sab Obi said: "It's good because we don't have anything else like this round here. When the government talks about people getting fat, having the gym will encourage them to get fit and healthy."

The gym was officially opened with a ribbon-cutting ceremony last Thursday by Cllr Steve Offord, the royal borough's cabinet member for housing. He said: "At this difficult time for families it's good to see the council and Groundwork working together to provide recreation and exercise equipment for families to use together."

Bar owners fined £10k for hygiene offences

THE OWNERS of the Trafalgar Tavern have been forced to fork out more than £19,000 after a visit by environmental health inspectors.

Greenwich Inc (Trading) Limited was fined £10,500 with £8,675.52 costs after the royal borough environmental health team found serious breaches of food hygiene at their Trafalgar Tavern venue in Greenwich town centre last year.

The sentence was handed out by Greenwich Magistrates' Court on Wednesday February 20. An additional £15 victim surcharge was also issued, taking the total amount payable to £19,190.

Following a routine visit by environmental health inspectors on February 16, 2012 they found evidence of a serious mouse infestation including mouse droppings in the main kitchen, on shelves and in a store room.

There was no access to hot water or hand washing facilities and raw sewage was found to be backing up into sinks, which had then been covered in cling film.

The condition of the kitchen posed an immediate and serious food hygiene danger so a temporary closure order was imposed to allow for urgent improvements to be made. The owners carried out a deep clean and other improvement works including the fitting a new boiler. As a result the premises were able to open again on February 21, 2012.

Councillor Maureen O'Mara, the royal borough's cabinet member for community safety and the environment said: "The royal borough has a legal duty to ensure that local food premises operate safely and we always offer advice and guidance to food businesses to help them meet their legal requirements. We're also committed to ensuring that people can visit and eat at local restaurants across the borough in the knowledge that safe and essential food hygiene standards are being followed."

Youth concert raises £60,000

A GIG to raise funds for young people has netted £60,000.

The concert, featuring Olly Murs and Lawson, was hosted by radio DJ Dave Berry on February 11 at the Indigo2 in North Greenwich. Dave is a youth service ambassador for Charlton Athletic Community Trust (CACT), which uses sport to inspire and empower young people, and masterminded the event in celebration of the trust's 20th anniversary. The money raised will be split between CACT and Help a Capital Child which supports children and young people affected by abuse, homelessness, disability, poverty and illness. The gig was a sell out, with a crowd of 2,600 attending. For information about CACT visit www.cact.org.uk

Woolwich thrift store opens with an on-site help service

IT'S not just bargains on offer at a new charity shop - Age UK in Woolwich is just the second store in London to have an in-store information and advice centre.

The store on Powis Street was opened last week, and its help centre offers advice and support on benefits issues, housing and also has a form-filling service for older people, writes Grace Lipski.

Music from a local dementia choir heralded the opening of the store that sells items including clothes, bric-a-brac, kitchenware, homeware and toys.

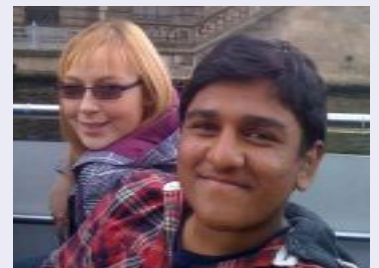

Natalie Turner from Age UK said: "Woolwich is a fantastic, lively location and it's really busy and steadily transforming. We wanted something on the high street particularly for older people to come to for general enquiries. Hopefully the shop will make a profit and the centre will be sustainable within the shop."

She added: "All sorts of donations are needed including bags, shoes, bric-a-brac, ladies, men and children's clothing. There are also opportunities for volunteers to come and help out."

Shopper Tina from Plumstead said: "I'm happy to spend money here because it's for a worthy cause. I will bring donations as well as come and buy things too, it's a circle."

It's open seven days a week, 9.30am to 5.30pm. Sundays 10am to 4pm. More info: 0800 169 8787 or visit www.ageukbromleyandgreenwich.org.uk

FILM FANATICS: L&D pals in Berlin for last year's award

Exhibition is a matter of Life and Deaf

THERE'S an exhibition on that's so important that it's a matter of Life and Deaf.

The therapy organisation, Life and Deaf is displaying poems and photographs by its members at the Victoria Hall at Woolwich Town Hall, until the end of March. It's not the first time the group has shown artistic flare – last year L&D was shortlisted from nearly 900 short poetry films from around the world for 'That's Not All of Me', featuring local young deaf people at the Berlin Film Festival.

And later this year the group – which is funded by the royal borough – set out on a tour of the UK. L&D's Katie Ford said: "In July we will set off on a 17-day UK tour in a VW camper van, including stops in Birmingham, Mold, Liverpool, Glasgow, Edinburgh, Newcastle, Leeds, Sheffield, Nottingham, Bristol and Exeter."

"Each morning we will visit a school, youth club or organisation to reach deaf young people, their families and school communities."

"Each afternoon we will visit a supermarket car park to reach large audiences of the general public. Our pop-up event will include film screenings, live poetry performances, a deaf awareness quiz, iPad games and lots of deaf awareness freebies."

The tour begins at the Old Royal Naval College in Greenwich on July 8.

And on March 26 a group of 20 students educated in Greenwich spend a day working with Julia Donaldson to jointly create a new children's book featuring deaf characters.

The children will also be working with professional illustrators. The children will get to see their ideas brought to life in illustrations and will also develop their own illustration skills.

The site gets more than 10,000 unique hits a month, and has helped her studies in more ways than one.

Lola reviews 50 beauty products a month, most of which are sent to her by the companies themselves.

"I've got about 500 products that I've reviewed or am reviewing—they're everywhere - under my bed, on the shelves in the bathroom and even in my wardrobe - there's not a surface that doesn't have products on!"

Now the student is hoping to launch some products of her own.

"I'm looking at making clay facemasks – I'll be my own guinea pig," she said.

A FREE training course is helping high-flying women get jobs in the transport industry, writes Rod Kitson.

Talks from a woman bus driver and an airline pilot were part of the sessions at Blackheath Rugby Club to help level up a male-dominated industry.

"Eighty per cent of passenger transport roles are taken by men," said host and trainer Linda Ransome. "We're saying 'Come on ladies - you can do them too!'"

Guest speakers who've been at the sharp end for years have given talks on their experiences. The next session is on March 11. "A woman bus driver came in to show that it can be a viable career for women with children," said Linda, "and pilot Anita Mays told her incredible story last Friday." Initially rejected for the job of air hostess, Anita got her wings before becoming a flying instructor and flying an executive jet for the world's rich and famous.

High points of her turbulent career included flying Posh and Becks to Cannes, Thierry Henry to Barcelona, Kate Winslet to Madrid, Rod Stewart on tour and the Rolling Stones to Berlin.

"Hopefully Anita's reminiscences gave the women on the course the inspiration to reach for the skies," Linda said.

Anita even nursed a World War Two bomber over the Atlantic, flew it in a TV series and acquired a seaplane licence.

"Her insight into a male-dominated industry showed the women that persistence and hard work can do and that women can do jobs traditionally thought of as 'jobs for the boys' " the trainer said.

The next free course is on March 11, but places are limited.

Invicta gets top marks from Ofsted

by Peter Cordwell

JUST when Invicta primary school thought it couldn't get any better, it did.

The 273-pupil school in Charlton was assessed as 'outstanding' by Ofsted as former pupil Daniel Day-Lewis won an Oscar for his role as Abraham Lincoln. "It's fantastic, a wonderful time for the school," said 40-year-old headteacher Marie Corbett. "What really pleased me about the report was that it recognised the hard work the school has put in over the last three years."

"We have gone from satisfactory to outstanding as a result of relentless determination to raise standards at the school."

The Ofsted inspectors found:

●Teaching is increasingly outstanding and almost always at least good in all subjects and year groups.

●Teachers expect the best of every pupil. They set tasks which are not only at the right level but sufficiently demanding for pupils to build on their skills and abilities.

●Standards are well above average in all subjects and have been consistently high over the last three years.

●Pupils' behaviour is exemplary and makes an exceptional contribution to their learning and the school's safe environment

●The headteacher is an inspirational leader who is dynamically supported by highly committed governors and staff.

"We try to provide a really exciting curriculum for the children and for Invicta to be a place for their parents to be proud of," said Marie, who has been at the school for seven years, five as head. "We held a Pride of Invicta awards day for children and parents who had shown the Paralympic values of determination, courage and inspiration."

"We knew this school was special and so did the parents but it's good to have someone external to come in and confirm it. We work hard on including Greenwich and the local area in our curriculum, including a whole school theme on the Cutty Sark, called 'A Sailor Went to Sea', to look at Greenwich's maritime history."

"This term we are carrying on the Olympic momentum with 'Be Inspired for Life', looking at aspects of health and fitness, and using the Olympic and Paralympic successes to inspire the children's lives."

The school is also expanding from a one-form to two-form entry, and is due for a rebuild.

Cllr Jackie Smith, the royal borough's cabinet member for children's services, told GT: "This is a wonderful achievement by Invicta, who have made incredible progress over the last three years to jump from satisfactory to outstanding."

"This can only be achieved by hard work and inspired leadership, and everyone involved at the school should be really proud."

SUPERHEROES: Woodhill pupils dressed as five Mondos

Super 'Mondo' for Woodhill's special project

WOODHILL primary school has launched 'Project Mondo', to help highlight the activities that parents and children can do together.

The launch included a projection onto the school building of the students singing 'Perfect Day' for the beginning of the project that hopes to help the inclusion of all parents and students at the school.

The school, on Woodhill in Woolwich, has 500 children speaking 47 languages – and one of the challenges was helping parents to get involved with student work or the school.

Project Mondo is running across five categories: ● Learning – where parents can work with their child after school together.

● Belonging – is about being part of the school community: attending a parents' evening or cooking.

● Exploring – going out to museums, local farms, or visit local landmarks.

● Sharing – is the chance for the parent to tell the school about their child's behaviour, helping around the house or being considerate to people for example.

● Helping – is about anything the parent can do to help at school, from attending assembly to doing something for a school event.

Every pupil will be given their own personalised "passport" with their photograph. Each time an activity is successfully completed, the teacher responsible will put a stamp in the passport.

Work starts on new Willow Dene

MAJOR work to rebuild Willow Dene school has got underway. Pupils and the headteacher were joined by Cllr Jackie Smith, the royal borough's cabinet member for children's services, to see the start of the £14million rebuilding scheme. The Plumstead school is for children with special needs but is currently spread over a number of buildings. The rebuild scheme will create a single purpose-built building along with a brand new warm water pool. Willow Dene has 159 primary school age pupils with a variety of complex needs. The school has been fully involved in the design of the redevelopment and pupils, parents and teachers are looking forward to a modern new school building which will have improved accessibility, more facilities, and the highest standards in sustainability. It's being funded by the royal borough together with government grants including £1.1million from the royal borough towards the warm water pool Cllr Smith said: "It's so exciting to see this rebuild project getting underway. "The rebuild is going to lead to very high quality educational and therapy facilities for some of the most vulnerable and disabled children in the royal borough. With these fully inclusive, state-of-the-art facilities, I know that Willow Dene will continue to be a centre of excellence for years to come." Headteacher Michelle Bernard added: "The children are really excited and thoroughly enjoying following the progress of the build. They are taking photos and creating books that will chart the story of the rebuild of Willow Dene School. Having a purpose-built school and access to an onsite pool will enable us to enhance the amazing provision that is already on offer. The warm water pool will increase children's access to swimming, and further develop the outstanding physical progress made by children at Willow Dene School."

Hundreds join tour of new Woolwich Crossrail tunnel

You view Tube

FIVE hundred people walked - and ran - through the massive junction box which is set to provide the foundation for a Woolwich Arsenal Crossrail station.

It was a chance for visitors to learn more about the link it will provide for the royal borough during half-hour tours at an open day last Wednesday (February 27), and there was also a fancy dress fun run through the site.

The Woolwich station box is 256 metres long, 26 metres wide and 18 metres deep.

In a few weeks time two 1,000-tonne tunnel boring machines will arrive to begin digging twin bore tunnels from Plumstead then under the Thames to North Woolwich.

The box was built by Berkeley Homes as part of the multi-million pound transport project which will offer locals direct access into London and the west right out to Heathrow and Maidenhead.

The developer is also building almost 600 new homes above the site and there will be retail and commercial space.

It's the result of a deal between Berkeley and the royal borough, Transport for London, the Department for Transport and Crossrail. It's expected to provide a major boost for the old Royal Arsenal site, which is undergoing a £1 billion regeneration, and Woolwich town centre.

The open day was attended by Berkeley Homes and Crossrail directors, Greenwich and Woolwich MP Nick Raynsford.

Berkeley hosted the fun run in aid of Demelza children's hospice, and Capital Radio breakfast DJ Dave Berry and TV celeb Sally Lindsay made a speech on behalf of the charity which they support.

Seventy runners - dressed as characters including Batman, Super Mario and a matador - made donations and sprinted through the underground thoroughfare which is equivalent to the size of 32 Olympic swimming pools.

Last week Crossrail said round-the-clock work was on track to create 26 miles of tunnels beneath London for the scheme.

Crossrail's chief executive Andrew Wolstenholm said: "With 26 miles of new tunnels to be built for Crossrail we are delivering our own London marathon beneath the streets of the capital. This is a huge and complex task with work underway 24 hours a day below London's streets."

BELOW GROUND: Greenwich and Woolwich MP Nick Raynsford and royal borough deputy leader Clr Peter Brooks talk to Keith Lee from Demelza.

Expanding Eltham

Development plans for a key site in Eltham have been welcomed by residents and traders, with schemes which are rejuvenating landmark sites in and around the town centre. Hilary Br...

WORK is set to start on a new shopping and housing complex on a key site in Eltham town centre.

The Grove Market site in Court Yard at the crossroads of Court Road and Eltham Hill has been boarded up for some years but a new deal will finally see development starting this summer. Developers Eltham Renaissance have linked up with Citygrove Securities PLC to develop the site with housing and shops.

Plans for the development include new homes, a hotel, a supermarket, retail unit for café or restaurant and parking.

Last week developers confirmed negotiations were underway with a number of partners to occupy the supermarket and hotel spaces and that demolition was due to start by early summer.

Richard Upton, director of Eltham Renaissance said: "We acquired the Grove Market Place site just as the economy went into freefall in 2007. Since then we have been working very hard to secure a future for this important site in the heart of Eltham."

"The deal we have struck with Citygrove to take the scheme forward does just that. I am confident that the exciting future we planned for the site will now be delivered by a partner with considerable experience and commitment to Eltham's town centre."

Eltham Renaissance is a sub group of the Cathedral Group which is overseeing the development of several sites in and around the town centre. The group is also behind the overhaul of the Coronet cinema at Well Hall roundabout.

Most of that site has been rebuilt providing new shops and 63 new homes. The old foyer in the Grade II listed building is set for a new life as a restaurant once developers can find an operator. Negotiations have been ongoing to complete the development which will include a 60-seat community cinema and any plans would retain the original art deco character of the building.

The new developments fit in with royal borough plans to boost the town's fortunes which are set out in the Eltham 'masterplan'.

Cllr Denise Hyland, the royal borough's cabinet member for enterprise, regeneration and skills, said: "Eltham is experiencing an exciting period of change with new investment and significant redevelopment taking place."

"The royal borough has identified the town as one of four key growth areas and adopted the masterplan, which sets out a vision for the area over the next 15 years. It aims to ensure existing and emerging development meets the very specific needs of the area while attracting investment from both the public and private sectors."

Patrick O' Sullivan is chair of the Eltham Partnership, a forum of town centre businesses, community groups and the council. He told GT: "Our main objective includes promoting Eltham as an accessible, safe and high quality environment for the benefit of business, residents and visitors."

"We encourage improvements to the economic, social and environmental well-being of Eltham and the quality of life for people in Eltham. We are looking forward to the Grove Market development offering a more attractive and lively place that people will want to visit and return to."

"This development will hopefully promote our town centre by adding to the shops and available accommodation."

On the retail front, vacancy rates in the town remain low and new businesses include specialist flooring company BR Flooring.

Trader Kish Gokani opened the new carpet store on Eltham High Street, just three weeks ago and said: "I know the area well and the high street always tends to be busy. The area needed a carpet shop and all the new developments will be good for business."

NEW HOMES: the former Eltham baths site, above, will soon be offering new homes for shared ownership

Plots on the landscape

DOZENS of new homes will soon be on offer for shared ownership on the site of the former Eltham Baths in Eltham Hill. The London & Quadrant Housing Association is set to complete works on site by the end of next month. The new complex called Eltham Springs will provide 45 one and two bedroom flats and two three-bedroom houses. In the first phase prices for one-bed flats start at £76,500 for a 45% share in a property worth £170,000.

- New homes for sale are being built on the former Eltham Gym site in Messeter Place off the high street. They include six, three-bedroom, two storey town houses and four two-bed room flats with residents' parking.
- Planning permission has been granted to NHS Greenwich which has plans to build a new Community Hospital in the heart of the town centre on Passey Place with a view to opening in 2013/2014. The new hospital could house a seven-day-a-week GP surgery, GP walk-in service, outpatients services and 40 intermediate care beds. Once final approvals are granted by NHS London, it's hoped that works will start on site in the spring.

- The Greenwich Enterprise Board is restoring the historic Orangery in Orangery Lane, Eltham to provide seven new business units for the town centre. Specialist architects have been employed to design the offices and studios, which will be available for rent later this year.

The development will retain the baroque character of the historic building, which had been empty for over 50 years, and will include a contemporary, two-storey building. For details and lettings from September, visit www.geb.co.uk

- A new 91-room hotel is set to be built on the site of Burger King in Sidcup Road, New Eltham.

It will have a tier of floors of one, three and four storeys with a reception foyer, bar and restaurant on the ground floor with parking planned for the ground floor.

SETTING SITES RIGHT: above, plans illustrate the proposed community hospital

LOCAL LANDMARKS: Eltham is known for its highstreet, leisure facilities at the Eltham Centre and attractions such as Well Hall Pleasaunce, Eltham Palace and St John's Church, which make it a desirable place to live and work

BEST ACTOR: Day-Lewis won his third Oscar for role in Lincoln

Greenwich lad's record Oscars haul

HE was a pupil at Sherington and Invicta primary schools, and now he's a three-time Oscar winner.

Daniel Day-Lewis won best actor at the Hollywood awards ceremony on February 24, for his portrayal of US president, Abraham Lincoln.

In doing so, he made history as the only man to win the best actor gong on three occasions, surpassing Marlon Brando and Jack Nicholson's two each.

He saw off competition on the night from Denzel Washington and Hugh Jackman to take the statuette for his part in the Steven Spielberg biopic that charted the 16th president's ultimate feat – the abolition of slavery.

Hollywood is a long way from where it all started for Day-Lewis – the Crooms Hill house where he grew up.

The property opposite Greenwich Theatre has a blue plaque honouring Daniel's poet laureate father, Cecil Day Lewis.

It was where the actor spent his formative years, when he was a pupil at the Invicta Road primary, and then Sherington on Wyndcliff Road in Charlton.

He won his first best actor Oscar in 1989 for his role as Christy Brown in My Left Foot, and got his second for There Will Be Blood in 2007.

Film fans can stroll through Oscar-winning locations at Greenwich's Old Royal Naval College. It featured in Les Misérables, which won three Oscars, and in James Bond's Skyfall, which won best song. More info about the site at www.ornc.org

Quids in at Poundtown

THINGS might not be so great when you're Poundtown, Petula Clark or no Petula Clark.

Poundtown is the latest typically challenging play to be staged at Greenwich Theatre by the Kidbrooke Theatre Company based at Corelli College, from March 19 to 23.

The new play by Ben Hales takes a darkly funny look at double-dip Britain with a 21st century Pied Piper having some highly questionable investment plans for the high street.

Poundtown is on from March 19 to 23. Tickets £12.50/£7.50. Book on: 020 8858 7755 or at www.greenwichtheatre.org.uk

JULIE FELIX is sure to have her lyrics in order at Charlton House this Friday, after an appearance last year left her lost for words.

The perennial folk singing activist, who will be 75 in June, forgot a couple of lines at the International Women's Day event, but turned it into a running joke with the 120-strong audience packed into the old library.

And, with all due respect to the Dylan song she famously covered – 'Masters of War' – she went down a bomb.

"I'm always involved in women's and political issues so it was a joy to perform at Charlton House last year. It's such a lovely venue and I'm delighted they have invited me back," Julie told Scene.

"Last year I expected it to be all women but it was a mixed audience, which is even more important these days. This is a very important year for women following Eve Ensler's A Billion Rising worldwide project on Valentine's Day.

"Two weeks ago I was singing at the House of Lords for a charity to build a hospital in Palestine. It was funny because normally I'm outside the building protesting!"

Julie was very much part of the international folk revival in the early Sixties after "getting out of" college in Santa Barbara. "I majored in drama and English, and learned guitar from my dad, who was a musician. I never intended to be a singer. I didn't know what I was going to be.

"I travelled around Europe and in Greece I came across a young man who was writing a book of poems who turned out to be Leonard Cohen. I eventually came to England and somebody made a tape of me singing at a folk club and sent it to Decca records."

She became the first folk artist to be signed to a major label and went on to give her first solo concert at the Royal Albert Hall in 1966.

"I sang Masters of War at the House

Felix from the flames

ALL KINDS OF FOLK:
Julie and her beloved
acoustic guitar

Julie Felix returns to Charlton House this Friday, but she won't come unstuck this time around, she tells PETER CORDWELL of Lords. The activity that still makes the most money for the global elite is the sale of arms," said Julie, who will be giving a 75th birthday concert at Leicester Square Theatre on Saturday, June 15.

"When I recorded that song I left out the last verse because I thought it was so dark. I ended on the line that all the money they've made will never buy back their souls. But now I sing the whole song, including to the lords!"

What's Julie's take on the longevity of stars from the Sixties – the Stones, Dylan, herself and many others? "I think some of us are bringing certain energies from the Sixties and there are some songs that still need to be sung and need to be heard.

"I think music is a kind of prayer sometimes and it's electricity to be plugged into. And I've found you can balance the spiritual and the political by bringing the feminine into the equation.

"As I approach three-quarters of a century I hope what I've learned can help other people along the way, musically, psychologically or whatever – to benefit the greater whole."

The event on Friday is one of the regular specials put on by Louisa Le Marchand's Global Fusion Music and Arts group based in Charlton.

As well as Julie Felix, there will be a Tai Chi demonstration from Chew Yeen Lawes, some Nigerian Highlife from Princess Adebisi Faderera Oke, Jewish singer Minouche Kaftel and the Tamil Academy Dance Group.

Doors open at 7pm for 7.30pm-10pm. Tickets £7 and £6 for Greenwichcard holders. More info: 020 8858 9497 or globalfusionarts@yahoo.com Tickets at: www.wegotickets.com

MAKING A GOOD IMPRESSION: painting of Canary Wharf

Mosaic man has a night off the tiles

ROGER MORTIMER is best known for the sprawling mosaics that adorn the borough's public spaces, schools and centres. Brookhill children's centre is home to two of his artworks, and he's creating a Paralympic mural at Robert Owen Early Years Centre from recycled rubbish.

But now he wants to show off a different part of his art – his impressionist paintings. He's got an exhibition on at the Paul McPherson Gallery in East Greenwich until March 16.

"I've always painted and exhibited, but this is my first in Greenwich," Roger told Scene. "It's a chance for people to see the other side of my work."

The 34 paintings which make up the Immersed collection comprise 29 landscapes and seascapes and five of buildings.

"Some have references to places – there is one of Canary Wharf and Docklands. The paintings are really about how I respond to places," he said.

Roger works from memory most of the time. "They are images how I remember them," he said. "I always think that photos are never quite how I remembered a scene. I put intuition into the paintings."

The pictures have been put together over a remarkably short period, with the artist producing them all since November.

"I work quite quickly, but they have to feel right on the canvas because it's an intuitive process. They have to 'click' inside."

Roger finds inspiration for his work in seemingly mundane situations.

"I travel a lot by train, and I get fleeting glimpses of things that would make wonderful pictures. They are a representation of how I remember them – it makes it more intense and makes you more interested in the picture." RK

Immersed exhibition is on at the Paul McPherson Gallery, 77 Lassell Street, Greenwich, March 5-16. Free entry. More info www.paulmcgallery.com or call 020 8269 2990

Journey times

YOUNGSTERS got the chance to go back in time at the Discover Greenwich centre to find out what life was like for sailors in the 18th century.

The Greenwich Journeys exhibition runs until next month and shows work made by local schoolchildren as part of a project focusing on long distance travel. Pupils explored the stories and people associated with the history of the ORNC to create a range of work which is on show at the centre's gallery.

Exhibition runs until April 1 and is free. More info: www.ornc.org or 020 8269 4747

GREENWICH PENINSULA ECOLOGY PARK

Frog Day, Sun Mar 17

ARE you a frog fan? If you love the little green critters, the Greenwich Peninsula Ecology Park day devoted to the amphibious creatures might be right up your street.

Frogs are a cold-blooded species that live on land and in water. At this time of year they rise from their winter slumber to start procreation in the form of laying frogspawn in ponds and lakes, so it's the perfect time to see them up close.

Activities are free at the park on the Thames Path just off John Harrison Way, and include pond dipping, microscopy, storytelling, treasure trails, art and garden pond workshops.

Experts are on hand to give advice about how to help keep up the population of frogs and toads and keep wildlife friendly. Warden Joanne Smith said: "Frog numbers are in serious decline worldwide so it's important we do our bit to help them."

Frog Day is at the Greenwich Peninsula Ecology Park on Sun Mar 17, 11am-3pm, FREE

Royal Borough of Greenwich's Choice Based Lettings Scheme

Edition 329

How the lettings policy works

Housing applicants are placed within 'Bands' according to the Royal Borough of Greenwich's policy for letting homes. Your band information is on the letter that the Council sent you when you registered, or when your circumstances changed. Property adverts say which band can apply and any other criteria. When all the bids are received, the property is then offered to: For properties advertised for band A and band B - the applicant who has had this priority status for the longest time. For properties advertised for band C applicants - the applicant who has been registered on the Council's list for the longest time.

BAND

- A is for applicants in unsatisfactory housing, including people moving due to demolition and those underoccupying their homes.
- B is for applicants the Royal Borough of Greenwich must prioritise according to the law, particularly homeless people, and others with an urgent need to move for medical or welfare reasons.
- C is for all applicants on the housing register, including those that are in priority bands A and B.

How do I apply?

Get on the list

First, you've got to be on the housing waiting list to join the scheme. If you're not, register an application on line at www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk

Find your applicant number

It will be on the letter you've already had from the Royal Borough of Greenwich about the new scheme. You'll need that number and the reference number of the property you're after, which will be on the advert.

Pick out your ideal property

by looking in Greenwich Time or regularly checking the website:

www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/homes

Click on your preference on the website. If you don't have a computer, you can always use one for free at either The Eltham or Woolwich Centre or a local library.

Apply in one of two ways

- Phone the 24-hour hotline 020 8921 4340. It's an automatic push-button system and calls will be charged at the normal local rate, or
- Via the Royal Borough of Greenwich's website www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/homes

The next edition of GreenwichHomes will be available on Wednesday 13 March 2013 at midday and will include any Housing Association properties when available. Closing date for all applications for this issue is midnight on Sunday 10 March 2013.

Royal Borough of Greenwich's Choice Based Lettings Scheme

Important Notice

Changes to the rents and tenancies of some advertised housing association properties.

Affordable Housing

Currently the rent level for the properties you see advertised in Greenwich Homes is significantly lower than full market rents in private sector housing.

From now you will now be seeing some housing association properties advertised for higher rents, up to eighty percent of the market rent. These rents will also include the service charge that you will need to pay for the property. We will use the phrase Affordable Housing on the adverts to help you identify these properties.

Please note the Council will continue to advertise all the homes it owns at the standard rent level.

You can bid for properties advertised as Affordable Housing in exactly the same way as for other advertised properties. If you are successful the housing association may want to check you have enough income to pay the higher rent, whether you are working or on benefits. If you are currently a housing association tenant the rent you pay on your present home will not be affected by this change.

Fixed term tenancies

You will also notice that the tenancies for Affordable Housing and some other housing association properties may now be for a shorter period than the present lifetime tenancies offered by housing associations. The phrase Fixed term tenancy will be used in the adverts to identify these properties. The tenancy details will be explained to you if you are successful when you view the property.

Please think about these changes when bidding for an Affordable housing property and make sure you can afford the home that you choose.

Soccer the answer

The team that's showing players a whole new ball game

A COMMUNITY sports project is steering young men away from gangs and onto the football pitch.

"We think that getting youths involved in sport is very important," said Meridian Sports and Social FC's coach David Doherty. "We try to get them involved in sports to channel their energy away from crime."

The Charlton club play in the South London Alliance League, and have more than 30 players aged 16 upwards, who come from the local area and the university where David is getting his coaching badges.

The importance of the club's work really hit home when a fringe player was killed last month.

The tragedy made David even more focused, and now the team meet three times a week.

"If you get them involved in sports, they have got something that keeps them busy that they can focus on. It keeps them occupied day-in, day-out", said the 39-year-old.

"They have a routine and they have something occupying their hearts," he said. "I'm trying to create a club with a timeframe that will suit the lads. We train from 11am to 1pm on Wednesday and Fridays, and we play matches on the weekend."

David knows what it is like to be at a low ebb - he spent time homeless before he was able to get a roof over his head and start the club a year ago.

"I've been on the street - it's not

TEAMWORK THE KEY: players from Meridian Sports and Social FC take a break from training at their ground in Charlton something I ever want to go back to. I use myself as an example to them, to say, 'Listen, I've been in your shoes, and you have to be calm, you have to think of what you want to do for yourself and the community, and think about the way people perceive you'.

"We want to try and create another avenue for them, which is why I always say to them that they can speak to me about anything. We do whatever we can to encourage them to come down to play with us."

Local businesses have got involved to support the club. "Nando's kindly said that we can go down there and have something to eat every two weeks on Sunday, and that's another incentive," said David.

"We're trying to get them into training courses, and a couple of the lads have said they want to go into coaching football. We want to show that through the channel of football there are many other avenues they can pursue."

Nineteen-year-old right-back, Fernando Spence told GT: The club's helped me a lot, it's really good in terms of the things we have available to us, and the coaching too - not a lot of people would take the time out in a weekday to come and support a project like this."

Mustapha Junior, 20, added: "It's something to do to keep you going - to come here day-in, day-out is great, and whatever you do in life you need that routine."

Gem's golden throw

At last she hears the anthem played for her

by Peter Cordwell

GEMMA Gibbons' campaign to break new ground following her Olympic silver medal continued with victory in the Dusseldorf Grand Prix.

The 26-year-old from Charlton captured the British Championship title a month ago and was making her first international appearance since winning silver in London.

The Dusseldorf Grand Prix is one of the highest-level events on the International Judo Federation calendar, attracting the top competitors from around the world.

The final of the under 78kg women's category saw Gibbons face Ruika Sato. It was another tough fight that almost went the distance. Gemma won it by throwing the young Japanese athlete 12 seconds from the end of the contest, sealing her first IJF World Tour win. Gemma said: "It was great to win here today and to hear the national anthem play for me for the first time was amazing."

"I was really pleased I was able to perform at this level and execute some great judo. It's been six months since I have fought against some of the best players in the world and to come away with the gold gives me great confidence going forward to the European Championships."

Coach Kate Howey said: "Gemma fought really well today throwing the Japanese with a fantastic uchi mata in the final."

"This was a great performance back at this level, having time out to recover from her thumb operation after the games. It proves to her and the rest of the judo world that the Olympics was not a fluke and she can win at this level. This will give her so much confidence for Rio."
